

Don't ask Tony and Melissa about race relations! They never heard of the problem. They're too busy getting acquainted...playing together...setting up a sidewalk soft-drink "business." Their very unawareness makes their story a classic short film about racial innocence. Join Tony and Melissa for ten minutes of their summer afternoon; your feelings about race problems will never be quite the same. Its many levels of implicit meaning make this color/sound film a most unusual introduction to sermons, discussions, or church school lessons about race. Rental $15.00.
